FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NARROW GATE MEDIA'S INTERNSHIP PROGRAM CONTINUES TO PRODUCE WINNERS.
STEVE BRAND RECEIVES INTERN OF THE YEAR HONORABLE MENTION IN 2004 INDIANA
INTERN AWARDS

INDIANAPOLIS – Every so often, an intern comes along who rises above all the others. One who really makes your life easier and your world a little brighter. There are internship programs that offer such high-quality experiences that students– and colleges–sing their praises. These programs offer students a true taste of life in their chosen fields of study and send them back to school rejuvenated.

“Narrow Gate Media prides itself in delivering the best, cutting-edge new media and eMarketing applications to its clients,” said Tim Vaught, co-founder of Narrow Gate Media. “Our internship program is a vital component in the continuation of this process. Not only does it allow us to give back to the educational institutions that prepared us, but it also gives us a sneak peek at the new, up and coming talent in the industry in a hands-on working environment.”

There were numerous terrific nominations this year for the Indiana Intern Award. Among the winners was Narrow Gate Media's Steve Brand, who received Honorable Mention for all his hard-work, dedication and accomplishments as an intern at Narrow Gate Media this summer.

Steve is currently a student at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Indiana, majoring in Computer Graphics Technology. He will graduate in June of 2005 and currently holds a cumulative G.P.A. of 3.55 on a 4.0 scale.

“Thank you for the opportunity this summer, it helped me out tremendously,” said Steve Brand. “I definitely feel like I'd rather be in the office, I felt like I got more done there than all of the time I spend here in the classroom.”

The following is the complete list of 2004 Indiana Intern Award winners:

Best of the Best

Student - Kikie Nikijuluw, interned with Second Helpings

Award of Excellence

Student - Patricia Cooksey, interned with Indiana Youth Institute

Honorable Mention
